ISLAMIC COIN AUCTION in LONDON

conducted by

Baldwin's Auctions Ltd and Arabian Coins and Medals (LLC)

Royal Society of Arts, John Adam Street, London WC2N 6EZ

Our auction venue

The Royal Society for the encouragement of Arts, Manufactures and Commerce was founded in 1754, by William Shipley, a drawing master from Northampton, who assembled a group of the most eminent artists, philosophers and scientists of the day and declared that the objectives of his Society were 'to embolden enterprise, to enlarge science, to refine art, to improve our manufactures and to extend our commerce'. The Society moved to its present premises, which were purpose built by the Adam brothers as part of their Adelphi development, in 1774.

Our logo

A. H. Baldwin and Sons Ltd., founded in 1872, has had premises in The Adelphi since the 1920's and since 1970 at 11 Adelphi Terrace. The original terrace was demolished in 1936. The drawing is derived from part of Robert Adam's original plans for his Royal Terrace, and depicts the house at the West end of the Terrace at the corner of Robert Street.

al-Muttaqi (329-333h), Dinar, Baysh 334h, 2.78g (SICA 7 – same dies). About extremely fine and very rare. £8,000-10,000

The caliph al-Muttaqi was deposed in the second month of 333h and was succeeded by al-Mustakfi, who himself was deposed in 334h, the year in which this coin was struck. This enigmatic coin could either represent a deliberate refusal to recognise a new caliph or a simple coin-striker's error. The chief town of the Wadi Baysh in the Asir province of Saudi Arabia is today known as Umm al-Khashab. In those days it appears to have been a rich source of alluvial gold which provided the metal for its coinage.

During the reign of al-Muti' the caliphate was under the direct political control of the Buwayhid ruler of Iraq, Mu'izz al-dawla from 334-356h and 'Izz al-dawla from 356-367h. The caliph al-Muti' is not known to have struck any coins in his own name in Baghdad during this period. However, this presentation medallion demonstrates that he still had the authority to issue donative pieces in his name alone. They were probably intended for presentation to immediate members of the caliph's own family, honoured guests and petitioners for the purely religious honours conferred by the caliphate. This piece, for example, bears a representation of a falcon on its perch with wings outspread on the obverse and on the reverse a richly caparisoned Bactrian, or two-humped, camel. Since this camel is native to Central Asia, it is possible that the medallion may commemorate a visit from the Samanid Amir requesting confirmation of his status as governor of Transoxiana. In any case, it provides an important example of the representational art of the time.

QARMATID OF AL-BAHRAYN

Anonymous (al-Sadah al-Ru'asa), Dinar, Filistin 368h, obv al-Sa'dah al-Ru'asa beneath fourth line of kalima, mint and date in inner margin, Surah 30:3-4 in outer margin, rev lillah / Muhammad rasul Allah / salla Allahu 'alayhi / wa 'ala alihi / al-Ta'i' lillah, Surah 9:33 in margin, 4.36g. Extremely fine, apparently unrecorded and of the highest rarity. £15,000–20,000

This coin marks the end of the Qarmatid adventures in Syria and Palestine which began in 358h and ended in defeat in 368h. Several points deserve to be noted about the piece. It was issued in the name of al-Sadah al-Ru'asa, or Council of the Chiefs, the leaders of the Qarmatid movement in Bahrain in Eastern Arabia. What is interesting about it is that no individual leadership is indicated in its legends. This is curious because it implies that the Qarmatid forces were not led by Abu Mansur al-Mu'izzi (Alptekin), whose name had appeared on the coinage in 367h. In that year Alptekin forced the Fatimid caliph al-'Aziz to cede him the territory between Damascus and Ascalon and suffer the humiliation of evacuating Ascalon by passing beneath a sword and a lance hung over the gate. This humiliation roused al-'Aziz to take his revenge by leading a massive army which defeated the Qarmatid forces near al-Ramla in Muharram 368h/September 978. This coin could only have been struck to pay the Qarmatid army immediately before the battle. It is recorded that the caliph captured Alptekin and unexpectedly showered him with honours and took him into his own service. The wazir Ya'qub b. Killis was accused of poisoning Alptekin shortly thereafter. Is it possible that Alptekin deserted the Qarmatid army before the battle, looking for a reward from al-'Aziz for his treachery? This would have left the Qarmatid forces to fight on under the distant authority of their Council of Chiefs. Despite his victory al-'Aziz continued to pay a sizeable tribute to the Qarmatids to avoid further trouble from them in Syria.

It is stated that Saladin spent most of his time in Syria and that Damascus was his favourite place of residence. Egypt and her resources supplied the means for his expansionist policies and his victories. Although he struck an abundant silver coinage in Syria, this is the only occasion when he is known to have struck gold there. The date on this dinar matches that of his decisive victory over the Crusaders at the Horns of Hattin on the heights to the west of Tabariya on Saturday, 24th Rabi' II 583h/4th July 1187. This was followed by mopping-up operations throughout Palestine and culminated in the reconquest of Jerusalem (al-Quds) on 27th Rajab 583h/2nd October 1187, when he solemnly reconsecrated the al-Aqsa Mosque. On this coin Saladin described himself as Sultan al-Islam wa'l-Muslimin, the only occasion when he did so. It is likely that it was a donative issue, prepared in Damascus, for distribution to his victorious troops to commemorate their victories.
